

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The latest news from New Harvest:

- Isha Datar will be speaking at Bitten: A Food Conversation in New York City on February 12th. For further information and to purchase tickets, please visit the conference website.
- Indie Bio San Francisco's "Demo Day" for its latest cohort will be taking place on February 4th. For those in the Bay Area, this will be a fantastic opportunity to see cellular agriculture startups including Gelzen Inc. and Memphis Meats present their hard work from the last four months. If you aren't able to make the event in person, it will also be livestreamed at 3pm PST: follow #IndieBio for details!

NEW HARVEST FEATURES

This week's original stories by our staffers and volunteers:

- No new content this week!

FROM AROUND THE WEB

Our favourite content this week about the world of cellular agriculture:

- New Harvest community member and Executive Director of the Nonhuman Rights Project, Kevin Schneider was featured by the Animal Legal Defense Fund for his work using the law to help animals, including those in the food system. Way to go, Kevin!
- Illustrating how our dependence on animals and the increasing threat of climate change make the food system more vulnerable than ever, Ada Carr reports on the havoc that Winter Storm Goliath has wreaked in Texas and New Mexico, killing over 30,000 dairy cows in those two states alone

- Alanna Shaikh writes for UN Dispatch on the growing concern of antibiotic resistance, arising from the practice of using large quantities of antibiotics on livestock in animal agriculture. The further development of cellular agriculture can be a way to combat antibiotic resistance, as it would remove the need to rely on farmed animals for cellular products.

New Harvest is powered by people like you.

Donate Now!

New Harvest is a nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization.

EIN/tax ID number: 20-1425438

All donations are fully tax deductible.