NEW HARVEST FEATURES

This week's original stories by our staffers and volunteers:

- Erin got to chat with Yuki Hanyu of Shojinmeat and Integriculture about cultured meat in the sci fi manga lexicon, meat on Mars, and their first objective: culturing foie gras! Read our interview with Yuki here.

FROM AROUND THE WEB

Our favourite content this week about the world of cellular agriculture:

- Viv Craske of the newly launched Super Future Food podcast interviewed Arturo of Clara Foods about how to reconcile the demand for eggs with the growing awareness of the environmental and ethical compromises that go into egg production, both of which are on the rise. Listen here!

- The Shojinmeat team have produced a virtual reality video of a speculative cultured meat facility on Mars. The video is available on Youtube, and if you have GearVR or other head-mounted display, you can experience it in 3D!
- The National Climate Assessment was released in 2014, and summarizes the impacts of climate change on the U.S., now and into the future. We particularly recommend the section on potential climate disruptions to agriculture as it highlights the importance of working on more resilient methods of food production, which will hopefully include cellular agriculture as New Harvest's efforts continue to be supported.
- Did you catch the Project Profile we released on our studies on consumer perspectives on cellular agriculture with the Environmental Law Institute and Hart Research? All of the materials, videos, and our initial findings have been made available here. As these were the first American focus group studies on consumer perception, the sample size was quite small, and we're currently looking into the possibility of conducting a much larger national survey!
