

Hi friends,

One unsafe bite. That's all it would take to undermine the promise of cellular agriculture. The future of cultured meat hangs in the balance if safety isn't brought to the forefront and dealt with proactively.

That's why we're asking you again to help maximize the impact of our foundational safety manuscript. Your generosity will help transform this crucial paper into a digital tool and video, making our research findings even more accessible and easy to apply to the real world!

Yes! I support safety research in action

It will only take $7,500 more to ensure that our safety publication makes the biggest impact. And we're almost there thanks to the 29 generous community members who have given so far!

Give today to put our research to work. We just extended the deadline to March 24!

Every dollar donated directly supports open access safety research to secure the future of the field we're building, together.

With gratitude,

Stephanie Bailey
